Historical note

During the tenure of Harrison S. Morris (1892–1905), the position title was changed to secretary and managing director. Morris was one of this country's first professional arts administrators, and his impact on the Academy was profound. He cultivated friendships with many of the prominent artists of the day and was instrumental in acquiring many of the collection's masterworks. After his angry break with the Academy in 1905 he occupied other influential arts management positions. His autobiography, Confessions in Art (New York: Sears Publishing, 1930), is strongly critical of the Academy board, but is nevertheless a fascinating account of the daily workings of a major museum and of art world dynamics at the turn of the century.
